

Porcelain Panels

Porcelain Disclaimer

Porcelain is not indestructible. Although porcelain is a resilient material known for its durability, scratches and chips are possible. It is important to treat porcelain with fragility and care to avoid unwanted damage. To maintain the integrity of the finish, avoid exposure to permanent inks or dyes, and refrain from using abrasive cleaning tools or harsh chemicals.

Variations in porcelain materials are a natural outcome of the manufacturing process, and the raw materials utilized. Whether matte or glossy, the perception of color may change depending on natural light, artificial light, and even surrounding elements.

Manufacturing processes may result in minor discrepancies in the size and shape of porcelain panels. Although destined to fit seamlessly together, such variations can affect grout lines and seams.
